WASHINGTON NEWS.

Court of Inquiry to Investigate Hazen's Administration.

Civil Service Commission—Preparing for Work.

Matters of Interest Occuring at the Capital.

Official Inquiries

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The secretary of war is requested the president to order a court of inquiry to investigate General Hazen's administration of the signal service. The decision of the court has not been made yet but may be expected in a few days.

Charges against Supervising Architect Hill were made by Marcus of Maine. They cover twenty pages of legal cap written with a typewriter. Before congress adjourned March 3rd Hill hung, which he subsequently filed with Secretary Folger, to a number of pages of the capitol. The charge is that Hill was for payment of cutting stone. Hill by the supervising architect is expected to be impeached. Labor but never in the shape of formal charges. Supervising Architect Hill formerly chief clerk of the department office is here otherwise prominent.

The Commission Establishing

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The members of the civil service commission met by appointment at Willards hotel this morning, and proceeded to inspect the apartments of the head quarters. Judge Thomas one of the commissioners said "We want three rooms for the commission proper, and a large room in which to conduct examinations." The commissioners secure their quarters and will prepare for the work for which a warrant is pointed. It does for the government the commission will be adopted and a set of rules of conduction examination decided. The commissioners have not yet formally organized. It is understood that appointment of a secretary but did so after they reached here. It is in the hands of the printers.

The Malagasy Mission

WASHINGTON, March 12.—It is understood Mr. Gray will resign with the secretary of state in the [illegible] to return to the [illegible] the government [illegible] the [illegible] stipulated in the treaty. [illegible] this [illegible] the Malagasy tribes [illegible] will have the exchange of ratifications take place at or in Washington.

Star Route Trial

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Will on cross examination in connection with the [illegible] for expenses [illegible] thought the government theory were [illegible] might have pocketed some money [illegible] by granting the request.

Mr. Ker objected because it was not [illegible] Brady had not committed any [illegible] that he did not commit an [illegible] at the date of the [illegible] (1880) Brady's acts were under [illegible] by congress. He had been [illegible] to explain a deficiency of two million dollars. All of the contractors had been warned of their danger and had been advised to stand by Brady, for his protection as well as their own.

The witness said it could not assume at this time that the government had proved fraud, for it was what they were trying. The letters of the second assistant postmaster general were worthy of serious consideration. He had offered to be proved. Tended to throw light on the motives and the paper should be admitted. Merrick's statement about criminal investigation was not a matter for the court to pass upon. It was rather for the jury to consider. Walsh's testimony had been admitted to show Brady's habits, and this letter would be received for the same purpose.

Mr. Ker referred to Peck in some of the papers. The court to inquire is Peck dead? He had not the evidence of his death.

Dr. Hill presumed so. At any rate his wife has been a widow for several years.

Mr. Ker said no witness had testified to his death.

Dr. Hill said there could be no doubt of his death. Still he believed the government expected he was dead.

Mr. Ker. Well he has been a myth in this case.

Dr. Hill. He has been a myth in this now [illegible].

Mr. Ker. Yes, he is now a ghost and who [illegible] to become a ghost.

Dr. Hill. I don't know. (laughter.)

[illegible] of papers [illegible] to [illegible].

A Cheeky Claim

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The chief of the secret service division has made a report to the secretary of the treasury in regard to the case of George Albert Morgan, the notorious counterfeiter recently released from prison where he had served the greater part of a term of 12 years and who has made a claim against the government for $5,000 for his imprisonment. He made the claim as a British subject through the British minister. The claim was referred to the secretary of the treasury. The chief of the secret service treats it as a strong argument against the claim, which he says is based on a misrepresentation of facts and is without legal or equitable merit.

Changes in the Engineers

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Major Barlow [illegible] Col. Henry M. Robert of his [illegible] connection with improvements on the Ohio, takes the station at Milwaukee. Capt. Tillinghast will be relieved shortly by the first name officer and will relieve Capt. Edward Maghee of his duties in connection with improvement of the Yellow Stone and Missouri rivers taking the stations at St. Paul. Capt. Daniel W. Chas. Stewart and the board of engineers of the Pacific coast.

Tabor's Title

DENVER, March 12.—Some time since Attorney General Brewster telegraphed United States Attorney Brazee, of this city, asking his opinion upon the validity of Senator Tabor's title to the proposed site of the government building, to be erected in Denver. To-day Judge Brazee submitted his report in which he states that it is his opinion that Mr. Tabor has a valid title to the property in question.

Market Reports

CHICAGO, March 12.—In the United States district court this morning a decision was rendered in pending cases between the bucket shops and the board of trade to the effect that the board of trade as a chartered institution has full jurisdiction of its market reports and can dictate to whom the reports may be delivered.

Death by Accident

CHARLESTOWN, Ind., March 12.—A West bound train ditched E. B. and W. road near here into the Ohio last night as it was crossing the trestle two miles west of this city. Its only killing, Jack Green, the driver. Milton Cusk and Elizabeth Clark, passengers, were fishing, the first named falling, the latter drowned.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 12.—The roof of the north wing of the Tacon theatre crashed through the entire floor into the lower floor. Amongst several dead taken from the ruins was Tomas Sagistabal, one of the richest of Havana. Several families escaped unharmed.

THE LITERATURE CLASS

Beginning of the Study of Whittier

The attendance last night was very good but the exercise of answering questions dragged somewhat. Mr. Gregg thought that his students had not studied their lesson or else their courage had oozed away.

Mr. Gregg read from Green's History of England in regard to the revival of learning in England.

Longfellow was a child of wealth. Whittier never had the advantage of college training. He was bred a mechanic and in early life was a journeyman, forming a great contrast to Longfellow. At the age of twenty-two he became editor of the American Manufacturer and was a member of the legislature before he was thirty. He was correspondent editor of the National Era, the paper in which Uncle Tom's Cabin was published. Mr. Gregg read a criticism on Whittier as a poet.

The first poem of the evening was the story of Skipper Ireson. Mr. Gregg read what is claimed is the true story of Ireson, as published in a history of Marblehead. Ireson was tarred and feathered it seems, about 1805, but not by women, they having nothing to do with it, and was punished for a crime of which not he, but his crew was guilty. A letter from Whittier acknowledged that he knew nothing definite about the matter, that the story in the history was probably the correct one, and added that he would not willingly wrong any man, living or dead.

There was some discussion in regard to the Quakers, the sect to which Whittier is attached, their origin, numbers and tenets. Something was said also of the Mohammedan prophet, whose time for appearance is this year.

The other poem read was Ichabod. Ichabod means "this glory is departed," and was applied to Daniel Webster on account of his famous seventh of March speech in 1850 in favor of the compromise measures.

Mr. Gregg closed the exercises by reading a humorous story published anonymously in Harper's Monthly.

The following are the questions for the next meeting.

THE HUT ON THE BEACH

What was the scene of the "Hut on the Beach"? Who were the three friends?

Explain the line "To eat the lotus of the Nile." What poem of Tennyson's does this line recall?

Explain the line "And Elcelin's gray ghosts from Lothern graves looked out." Tell what you can about "the lettered magnate" alluded to.

Meaning of Hindamontine. Explain the line "Their singing robes and garlands on."

Tell what you can about Wordsworth. To what school of poetry did Wordsworth belong? What new movement in English literature was he prominent in introducing? Name three of Wordsworth's most eminent contemporaries and associates. Where is Rydal mere? Meaning of "mere."

Tell what you can about Elliott. Explain the line in which his name occurs.

Tell what you can about Rogers, Garrick and Walpole. Meaning of the phrase "buskined tread."

Explain the line "The winged Hippogriff Bayard." Where the Mauretanian shores? What is Arcadia gentle?

What is the motto of the Garter's knight? What is the story of Gyges' ring?

Meaning of "triton crusk" "lack and flaw." Where is Haley's isle? Explain the line in which the name occurs.

ABRAHAM DAVENPORT

Is this incident historically true? Where is Stafford? What are the Norland sagas?

Point out what language do the following words in the poem come: Councils state, justice, legislative, act, amend, regulate, question colleagues? What do these words indicate as to the distinctive genius of the Roman people? Give all the meanings of the word "post" that occur to you and state what is the primary idea in which all these meanings originate.

GENERAL MATTERS.

The Mississippi Steadily Falling at All Points.

Reports of Destruction Said to be Exaggerated.

Poison Suspected in the Death of Gortschakoff.

The Floods

HELENA, March 12.—The first loss of human life by the flood occurred by the upsetting of a house twelve miles south of here in which were six adults and four children. The latter were drowned, but the former were rescued by a party of hunters who took them off of the roof after they had clung to it three days.

The St. Francis swamp contains hundreds of horses, mules and cattle standing up to their throat in water their owners being unable to rescue them. Many carcasses are floating about. A legislative committee is examining into the condition of the people in the overflowed districts and will report in favor of aiding settle and to actual sufferers.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 12.—The committee in charge of supplies for the sufferers on the Ohio river, south of Evansville, reported on Saturday. They report great suffering and some actually ill of the river town. At New Albany, Indiana, in an village of 1,000 inhabitants thirty were destitute, fifteen sick and two dead. The disease is pneumonia. At Owensboro, Kentucky, of a population of 3,000, nearly everybody has suffered. Fifty are destitute. In Shawneetown, Illinois, 1,000 people are destitute, depending on the public for provisions and medicines. One hundred and twenty five are sick, twenty four have died of pneumonia, catarrh, fever and dysentery.

MEMPHIS, March 12.—The water has fallen nine inches since the decline set in and will fall more rapidly soon. The river is within the banks.

Two negroes, Tom Brown and Aaron Smith, drowned last week at Austin, Miss. by the capsizing of their boat.

Nothing additional has been learned here of the break which occurred on Saturday at Lincoln Circle 140 miles south of Memphis. The break into the Totten levee "50 miles below Friars Point, flooded all the country in the rear as far down as Australia." This break is just above the line of the second Mississippi levee district, which remains intact, and planters within that district do not fear an overflow.

Two men, names unknown, drowned on Friday ten miles north of Marion, Ark. Swift current upset their dugout and both were lost. Their bodies were recovered and buried.

The Appeals Helena special says: The river continues to decline. It registers 40 feet 7 inches on the gauge, total fall of four inches. The Lamplighter river has also declined. Preparations are being made to place back in position the bridge of the Iron Mountain railway, and trains will probably be moving again on this line in a few days. News from Clarksdale, Miss., today are encouraging and indicate that there have been some stretches of the imagination in reports hitherto sent abroad relative to the situation there. At Friar's, Miss., there is less destruction than at first supposed. The same is probably true of a great many other places as the record will doubtless show when there is a summing up after the water subsides. The simple facts are distressing enough without the coloring that has been given reports by sensationalists. Four children drowned by a cabin upsetting, two men drowned from a raft, and one or two floaters foot up the death list so far as heard from.

Death of Gortschakoff

BADEN BADEN, March 11.—Prince Gortschakoff, ex-chancellor of Russia, is dead.

BADEN BADEN, March 12.—Owing to suspicion that poison had been administered to him the body of Gortschakoff will be subjected to an autopsy and judicial inquiry will be instituted. The remains will be placed in the Greek chapel, where they will lie in state awaiting conveyance to Russia.

The Markets

NEW YORK, March 12.—Government 4's registered advanced ½, others not changed, railroads active, higher, state securities neglected. Stock market—in the forenoon prices made a considerable advance, fluctuations followed until two o'clock. In the last hour the market was quiet but strong and the highest prices of the day were made. The features were Union Pacific, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Western Union Telegraph Co., Lackawanna, Lake Shore and Northern Pacific. Compared with closing prices Saturday the general list shows an advance for the day of ¼ to 1½ per cent. The market closed generally strong. Transactions 317,000 shares.

Mining stocks dull. Sierra Grande 285, Iron Silver 2.00 to 3.00. Chrysolite 1.00 and 1½, Navajo 4.00, Bodie 1.00, Robinson Consolidated 57 to 60, and Sonora Consolidated 49 to 54, closing 51. Sales of the day 54,770 shares.

Ship in Distress

LONDON, March 12.—The ship Wiltshire, at Queenstown from San Francisco reports that she fell in with the Gordonia in distress and towed her until February 21st, when, in lat. 39 north, long. 30 west, she was obliged to abandon her, the wind being adverse. The Gordonia left Newcastle January 22d for New York, was taken into tow February 11 by the steamer Boyne, lat. 32, long. 42, but the line parted and the Boyne left her on the twelfth.

At 100 Duane street, New York, a woman was found dead in a house on Brooklyn avenue. Her face was two inches in the face. Two brothers named Willner are suspected. The cause of the murder was an old grudge.

At Camden, Del., Sergeant [illegible], Lieutenant Lee and Private Stephen Walsh, of the claim in the D. R. E. Heavy valley. It seems the latter attempted to jump Lee's claim and ordered Lee to leave the same at the muzzle of a gun. Yesterday Walsh was passed on his claim when Walsh fired upon him. Lee returned the fire, killing Walsh instantly.

TWO CONFESSIONS

Abstract of the Rector's Sermon at Grace Church

Rev. Geo. L. Talbot preached from Matt. Sunday morning from this text:

Whosoever confesses him before men him will I confess before my Father which is in heaven.

To confess means to avow, to declare belief or feeling, and implies frankness, sometimes a reluctance. It is also a voluntary act. To confess Christ publicly is not a confession of goodness. The world is apt to think it a great but not unnatural mistake. Nothing could possibly be more remote from the truth. One does not confess himself but implies an acknowledgment of dependence. There are some who confess Christ as they would some honest fellow citizen or statesman. Truly to confess Christ is to do as he desires to act in his service, not merely outwardly, but in the inward heart. Those who confess acknowledge their dependence on Christ as their Savior declare him their all in all. They do at the same time confess that they intend to attempt to walk as he wishes.

This confession he has declared to be public. When he was on earth many believed on him but would not confess their belief. It might be better for us if our religion cost us more. Yet men shrink away. They would have had to suffer much to become Christians in those days besides the inward struggle. Can Christ confess before the Father the one unwilling to bear only half the former cross?

If one should select the Stock Exchange of New York as the place to announce some great astronomical truth and his determination to live in accord with it, though the announcement might be of value, the time and place would be most inopportune. The fittest place to confess Christ is in the church ransomed by the blessed Lord.

Up to this point I have spoken of the sinner's confession of himself. Christ confesses as indissolubly bound together those confessing him on earth. Remember that his confession, like the one you are required to make of him is public. It is made before God. Christ's confession is all of love, the sinner's confession is at best but weak. His is perfect, yet how much of imperfection is mixed up with our confession. One is made before the throne of God, where the angels cry, "Holy, holy, holy," and yet their faces. To be confessed by the Lord Jesus in answer to your confession is to have your name on the roll of heaven and to have your future doubt removed. The soldier seeking promotion must be acknowledged by his superior officers, and so the captain of our salvation must confess your name.

The confessions are simultaneous. The response brought by electricity is not any quicker or more more certain than his confession of you. He is waiting to confess you, to inscribe your name on the Lamb's Book of Life. You say you cannot see this. But the infallible work of God gives better proof than the eye. He will not deprive you of the open sign of confession. He will give to you the sign of the laying on of consecrated hands.

But you say you can do just as well out of the church as in it.—But does not this come from a heart that is indifferent. Would it come from any one who really loves the kingdom of God? Is he honoring his sovereign who will not wear the uniform of his sovereign? Can you be a faithful follower out of the church which he has thrown wide open for you? If you could do as well out of the church, would he have died for it?

You say you might disgrace the church. That sounds humble. But it really means that you can not be a Christian and keep your sins. You are standing on one side and Christ and his on the other. Cross at once. Be loyal and obedient. He will acknowledge you and sustain your faltering feet. To live an irreligious life is to offer up a petition that you may have no part in the confession which Christ will make.

WIGGINS' STORM.

Eleven Men Burned to Death

BROWNSVILLE, D. T., March 11.—Hood & Call's lodging shell at Brownsville wood camp, burned last night. James Chalmers, Thomas Finless, L. Wright, Lewis Hanson, Peter Hansen, Harvey Wood, W. H. Andrews, Charles Hammond, Frederick J. Peters and Samuel Hayes were burned to death. Four others, names unknown were severely injured. The loss is $20,000.

The building was one story, with a loft where the men slept. It was accessible only by a ladder, and was usually occupied by thirty lodgers, but last night only fifteen were in the house. There was one window but only to air, badly burned, were saved by jumping. Two of them must have their legs amputated. The fire is supposed to have originated from kindlings left near the stove in which coals fell. Peters slept on the ground floor within five feet of the door, but the flames spread so rapidly that he could not escape. The bodies of eleven of the victims were charred beyond recognition.

DEADWOOD, D. T., March 12.—The men who escaped during the burning of the Brownsville boarding house give the following story. They were awakened by the blowing of a locomotive whistle about one o'clock Sunday morning. The room was filled with smoke from below and fire was leaping up around the kitchen stove pipe. The men were dazed but four went down a ladder and escaped with severe injuries. Three escaped unhurt through a small sliding window leading from the front to the roof of an adjoining building. Eighteen persons were in the house. Eleven perished. Two bodies were burned to ashes. The men had saved up their earnings and it is supposed endeavored to get the money and valuables out of a trunk and thus lost the opportunity of escape. The building was constructed of pitch pine and was totally consumed in thirty minutes after the discovery of the fire.

MINING MATTERS.

Notes Gleaned from Our Exchanges

LOOKING AHEAD.

Telluride Journal.

"The fine weather of the past two weeks has had a tendency to arouse prospectors, and all others whose time was not employed, to an unusual activity in their search for new locations. The center of attraction at present is the mountain to the west of town, and every day from early in the morning until late in the evening there may be seen all over the hill men with picks in search of something in the shape of a lead. At present their labors are confined to a search for a blind lead, the float from which is found along the hillside for several miles. It is remarkably rich in both silver and gold, and is a bonanza to the one who is fortunate enough to locate it. The hope, however of its ever being discovered is very frail. Every one for the past five years a most diligent search has been kept up but with no result. Tons of the float have been picked up and carried away by the thousands of prospectors who climb over the mountains, and yet one need not go far until he runs across a piece of the float thickly impregnated with gray copper. There are among mining men many conflicting opinions in regard to the float and its source. Some are confident in the belief that it was formed in ages long gone by, and in the general shake up accompanying some of the several eruptions that it is very evident have visited this section in past ages was thrown several miles and deposited along this hillside for a distance of more than ten miles. It is perhaps unnecessary to add that this class have given up the search and walk over the glittering rock without even stopping to pick it up. Then there is another class who persist in their search steadily maintaining that the mineral comes from a lead somewhere and that it never rolled down one hill and up another to get on this particular mountain. Consequently the vein is not very far off according to their calculations. And so the prospecting is continued by this class who are sanguine in their own mind that the vein will soon be discovered, buying themselves up by the hope that they may be the lucky ones who will stumble on to it by chance."

ARROWS NOTE

Dispatch to Denver Tribune.

Every day the value of the ores taken out of the various shafts increases surprisingly. Yesterday the excitement was turned toward the gulch at the lower end of town owing to the discovery of the mouth silver and free gold in the Clear Creek at a depth of 10 feet. From every direction throughout the camp comes the daily report of better ores as greater depth is reached. There is no doubt as to the existence of a deposit of mineral covering a large area. It seems to be the universal opinion of miners and mining experts. Two experts who came to this camp during the week without faith went away with the Express [illegible] that here is the biggest deposit of ore in the state.

The ore shipped from the Argo this week has been tested and while it does not reveal the full value that some attached to it yet the ore is of sufficient value to warrant the pushing of the work on the mine. There are a number of other shafts being worked that show as good if and even better than the Argo at the same depth. Among these are the Buchanan, Monitor, Blue, Old Hickory, London, Virginia, Princess, Belle and the Holland and Patterson.

The hoisting works of the Buckhorn will soon be completed and the work will be rapidly pushed on this mine.

Real estate is still advancing in price and the whole vicinity is staked out in town lots. It is simply astounding the news lots are being built and goods brought in. The eagerness with which some people try to secure town lots leads occasionally to a little trouble occurred during the week concerning the ground granted for church purposes but the difficulty was adjusted and the church holds possession.

The new hall opened last evening with flying colors and was the center of attraction.

A great deal of property has changed hands and the people seem to be at business. Steps have been taken for the incorporation of the town and as soon as possible the work will be completed. Crowds of people visit the [illegible] every day for the purpose of looking over the mining matters. Hippo R. Simpson have put on a stage line which connects with the train at Belle every day. To ride over the camps from Boulder to Arrows town is simply a matter of pleasure. Hotel accommodations will soon be good.

Mrs. [illegible] of Fort Collins opened a lodging house yesterday where the weary can find a good clean spot to sleep on. Although the rooms are crowded, the Union Pacific imagination succeeds as usual, in making their passengers comfortable.

What is to be the end of this no one can realize but if the work goes forward as now, the prediction that there will be 10,000 people in Arrowtown by the 1st of July will be more than fulfilled.

A NEW CONCENTRATOR.

Denver Republican.

The machinery for a new concentrator at Irwin, Gunnison county, has been shipped from this city, and its practical workings will be watched with unusual interest for several reasons. Colonel Willet Rose, of the firm of Rose, Reed & Co., at Denver, has personally superintended the construction of this particular plant, which differs in many essential particulars from the successful concentrator he used for several years in Clear Creek county. It is designed to concentrate ruby ores, which from their tendency to flake so badly, are much more difficult to treat than galena ores.

It is not expected that so great a percentage can be saved by this process as upon galena ores, but repeated and prolonged experiments have demonstrated that the ruby ores can thus be handled very advantageously.

In 1880 Rose, Reed & Co started their sampling works at Irwin and have since successfully operated them. Previous experience suggested the wisdom of building a permanent plant which would admit of enlargement of facilities as the camp developed and the ore supply became more assured. The time has now arrived and concentration works will be added immediately to treat the grades which are low in bulk but capable of being greatly raised by concentration.

This question of concentration of the ruby ores has been closely and perseveringly studied by experimental tests, resulting in the construction of a plant particularly designed for use on this class of ore. The sampling works are the most complete in the state, and the sixty horse power engine and eighty horse power boiler will furnish abundant power to operate both branches of their business. The capacity at start will be twenty tons daily with prepared facilities to increase to a much greater extent.

Colonel Rose declines at present to give publicity to his method for extracting the ruby flakes, which have hitherto defied other concentrating devices, but his confident assertion that he has discovered such a process and forwarded the machinery for a practical demonstration of his invention, is evidence of his sincerity and belief that he can accomplish results that will be of great value to the entire Elk Mountain district. He expects to have everything in working operation within the next sixty days, and the readers of the Republican will then be furnished with all the details of this very important new enterprise. Concentration is of such vast importance in every camp in the state that mine owners are especially interested in watching the practical tests of every new device that is brought to their attention. Any plan that can be successfully employed upon ruby ores will show increased efficiency when applied to those of galena and iron, and therefore the Irwin concentrator will attract more than local fame if it proves successful.

The Iron Queen says of Georgia's temporary governor that he is almost a positive contrast to the weary man who laid down the burden the other day. He is six feet three inches in height, broad-shouldered, erect, muscular, and well-proportioned to build. "He is the son of a Vermont farmer and has all the hardihood of the New England stock from which he springs. His mental qualifications are said to be fully equal to the high station to which he has by chance succeeded, and the people of the state honor and esteem him."

Another fling at our glorious navy: "Ecuador has a dictator, a rebellion and an exceedingly unsettled idea of the right of belligerents and neutrals. A war steamer of the dictator has plundered an English ship, and very soon there will be a gathering of British men-of-war along the Ecuadorian coast sufficient to blow the whole coast line back into the mountains. As for the crew of the pirate craft that did the plundering, they will do well to retire from the pirate line of business as soon as possible. Veintimilla, the dictator, ought to have picked out an American ship to rob. But perhaps an American ship has never been seen in Ecuadorian ports, and Veintimilla took the only craft that came his way."

The death is announced of Prince Alexander Michaelowitsch Gortschakoff. He was born in 1799, educated at the academy of Tsarskoeselo, and in 1824 became secretary to the Russian ambassador in London. He was employed in the diplomatic service at Vienna, Florence, Stuttgart and other places, and showed skill in his business, but he became famous because of his success in keeping Austria neutral during the oriental war.

In 1856 he became minister of foreign affairs, and during the Polish troubles of 1863 he made his influence felt in Europe. He was quite prominent a few years ago during the threatened troubles between Russia and England. In [illegible] he was given the title of chancellor, and remained one of the prominent statesmen of Europe until perhaps two or three years ago, when he retired from political life. The sickness, which it seems has resulted fatally, has been charged to poison by the nihilists. Gortschakoff does not appear to have been a liberal statesman, nor one friendly to popular reforms. Gortschakoff has been quite a prominent name in Russia. This family was descended from Michael Vsevolodovich, who was assassinated in 1246. We suppose Prince Gortschakoff belonged to this family though the common name is the only evidence of it we can lay our hands on.

The Nation says:

"Wedding breakfasts, to all stalwart guests, drives, club meetings, dinners, "banquets," receptions, and the hats and coats and all stalwart orators, speeches, and addresses carefully, for the purpose of finding out what a statesman is, and what he thinks or desires, but thus far in vain. We pay special heed, for this reason, to the utterances of the Rev. Dr. Newman, the stalwart chaplain, including even his sermons, knowing him to be an offensive and [illegible] divine, who is sad and blight fulness and when he feels in good spirits; but on this point he is dumb as a mute-image. At the dinner of the Lincoln club the other day, we felt sure the secret would slip out, but it did not. The speakers all avoided it, though there were numerous obscure allusions to it. The "Grant club," an Albany stalwart institution maintained by the estimable John F. Smith, had a dinner last week, at which many letters from distinguished absentees were read, but they were all obscurely obscure. Mr. J. Howard King called on the stalwarts to "close up their ranks, close the fortlet and forward on their business," and "call attention to the old-time enemy," but gave no reason for recommending this truly monstrous behavior. Mr. George Hill, the George Hill, hoped "the secession would lead in some manner to the restoration of the republic," but did not say in what manner. Mr. Martin L. Hewitt said "his heart would be with them," but did not say what about. Mr. Theodore Cuyler was "more hidden and sanctimonious than any mitre." He said it "was glad and to know that there were "tried and true, and steadfast in the faith," but did not say what "the faith" was. It may, for aught we can tell, be faith in John F. Smith. He was reminded that the Grant stalwarts say: "We abide in the ship we tried to hold her in her course." But why did they abide in the ship? What ship was it? What was her course? Where is she now, and who is navigating her?"

For Gilmer Review.

Since the assassination of the late emperor the efforts of the authorities to seek out and put down Nihilism have been, if possible, increased, and the comparative quiet and peace which have recently existed are no doubt again accepted as proofs of success. But the weakness of a policy of repression—in countries where admitted grievances exist—is that the people are against the authorities and in sympathy with the offenders. However perfect the policy may be in theory, it must always depend on the [illegible] administration on the officers employed to carry it out, and as a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, so the exercise of this policy is limited in effectiveness by the character and intelligence of the commonest officials. The machinery might be grand and imposing, but the motive power, instead of being supplied by a people who are in harmony with and supporters of the laws it seeks to administer, is derived from the police, the informer, and the spy. A policy of repression, therefore, adopted by an absolute resolute [illegible] government by the lowest and [illegible] ments of society. Hence it is that the permanence of the present inactivity on the part of the revolutionary party is not believed in except by the official mind, which, from its nature, judges mainly from appearances and from official reports and has but few true sources of information open to it as to the real state of things. The authorities are sitting on the safety-valve and congratulating one another that there is no escape of steam. But there are signs that a feeling of uncertainty exists in the public mind generally. The commercial and financial world is uneasy and insecure. The paper rouble, the price of which at par is 2s. 2d., has fallen to 2s. or 2s. 1d., as low as it was during the Turkish war. The report that the emperor had returned from Moscow in an ordinary train, the special train provided for him being sent on empty, affected the price of the rouble adversely, because it indicated the distrust and uncertainty which exist even with the czar and his immediate advisers. This distrust and fear are thought to be the reasons of the continued retirement of the emperor and the repeated postponement of his coronation. Enormous preparations for the coronation were made in the churches, palace and other places at Moscow, and it was fully expected that the ceremony would take place during the recent visit of the emperor. It will now be postponed until next spring or summer, as it must be done in a certain church at Moscow and with certain observances, and above all, must be made the occasion of great public pomp and festivities. To do it privately, or even quietly, would be a departure from [illegible] and would seriously damage the prestige of the czar in the eyes of the peasantry and poorer classes.

Early Sugar-Making in New Orleans.

G. W. Cable in the Century.

In 1791 the blacks of San Domingo took to insurrection. Refugees flew in every direction. A few found their way to Louisiana. They had been persons engaged in sugar-making, and potentially the efforts that had ceased for 25 years came again to life. Two Spaniards, Mendez and Solis, in that year erected on the confines of New Orleans, the one a distillery and the other a factory of sugar kettles, and manufactured rum and syrup. Still the creoles, every year less able than the year before to make rash experiments, struggled against the misfortune that multiplied around the cultivation of indigo, until 1794 found them without hope. At this juncture appeared Etienne de Bore. He was a man of 54, a circle of the Illinois district, but of a distinguished Norman family; he had lived in France from the age of 4 to 20, had served with the king's musketeers, had married a lady whose estate was in Louisiana near New Orleans, and had year and with her to the province and had become an indigo-planter. The year 1794 found him face to face with ruin. His father-in-law, Destrehan, had in former years been one of the last to abandon sugar culture. His wife and friends warned him against the resolution he was taking, but he persisted in his determination to abandon indigo and risk all that was left to him on the chance of a success, which, if achieved, would insure de Bore and fortune to himself and the community. He bought a quantity of canes from Mendez and Solis, planted on the land where the Seventh Ionians (late Carrollton) now stands, and while his crop was growing erected a mill and prepared himself for the momentous season of "grinding." His fellow-planters looked on with the liveliest—not always with the most hopeful—interest, and at length they gathered about him to see the issue of the experiment in which only he could be more deeply concerned than they. In the whole panorama of the history of the Louisiana colonies—few scenes offer so striking a subject for the painter as that afforded in this episode. The dark sugar-house; the battery of huge caldrons, with their yellow price boiling like a sea, half-hidden in clouds of steam; the half-clad, sweating negroes; the grotesque utensils with which the resulting liquid was dipped from kettle to kettle; here, grouped at the end of the battery, the creole planters with anxious faces drawing around their central figure closely as they watch and in the midst the old manoeuvrer, dipper, from time to time, the thickening juice, repeating again and again his simple tests, until, in the moment of final trial, there is a common look of suspense, and instantly after it the loads are dropped, heads are raised, the brow is wiped, and there is a long breath of relief—"it granulates!" The people were electrified. Etienne de Bore marketed $12,000 worth of superior sugar. The absence of interdictions, that had stifled earlier trade, enabled him to sell his product to advantage. The agriculture of the Delta was revolutionized; and seven years after and New Orleans was the market for 200,000 gallons of rum, 250,000 gallons of molasses, and 5,000,000 pounds of sugar. The town contained some 12 distilleries—probably not a subject for unmixed congratulation and a sugar refinery, which produced about 200,000 pounds of loaf sugar, while on the city, hand the production of indigo had declined to a total of 5,000 pounds, and soon after ceased.

Street Life in Naples.

Tour de Bec.

The houses of the poorest quarters of Naples have often been described only by pitiful strangers, and by none more eloquently than by a learned and benevolent Italian professor, who described his experiences in the writer's presence. Amid the accumulated miseries he witnessed, his compassion was especially aroused by one case, that of a widow, who with two children, a boy and a girl, slept in a dark and loathsome cellar, so infested by rats that a large stone had to be kept within reach at night to repel their approaches. The principal occupance of the family consisted of water in which chestnuts had been boiled, with some miscellaneous scraps; their clothing attached their food and lodging. From this state of wretchedness they were rescued by the professor, by whose exertions, after having been washed and decently clad, they were placed in a school, where the children were taught, and the mother employed as charwoman. At the end of two months the widow up her situation, to go back, with her children, to her old den. They were inconsolable, and could not bear the restraints of [illegible]. But in mitigation of the misery of the Neapolitan rookeries, it must be said that they are mere lairs, resorted to for sleep alone, while the remaining business of life is carried on out of doors, in the most equably benign climate in the world. The back streets and blind alleys of Naples are the scene of a perpetual picnic, recalling the al-fresco housekeeping of a gypsy camp. Fire is rarely lit within doors and culinary operations are carried on in the street, over circular heaters in the shape of a warming pan the charcoal in which is fanned to glowing heat with a disk of plaited straw, the invariable substitute for a bellows. These movable hearths in winter become centers of attraction to passers by, and the groups of loungers gathered around them form a conspicuous feature of Neapolitan outdoor life. The street which has served as a kitchen is transformed into a banquet hall, where, about noon, the inhabitants may be seen seated in front of their houses eating boiled chestnuts or plates of yellow meal polenta, macaroni, since the introduction of the grist tax having become rather an article of festive luxury than of daily diet. In the street, too, are performed all save the most elementary operations of the toilet, and hair dressing in all its phases invites the attention of the public who are gratified with the sight of long black tresses in every stage of disentanglement. The lava pavement in front of the doors is furnished in the afternoon as a salon with a due allowance of rush bottom chairs whose weight-carrying powers would seem to be of a high order, judging from the [illegible] they can [illegible] sustain. These bulky matrons are generally engaged, like so many parcae, plying distaff and spindle, while the girls seated beside them are more frequently intent on their hemming and embroidery. The Neapolitan [illegible] the most gamin of all gamins, surpassing even his Parisian prototype in his own walk. As a pick-pocket he may fairly claim the championship of the world, and the temper of the British paterfamilias is in a chronic state of exasperation during his stay, owing to the daily abstraction of his handkerchief, spectacle case, and other small gear from remote pockets to which they were too confidingly committed. Detachments of these arabs haunt the public gardens and other resorts of strangers, tendering for sale corpili marini (skeletons of lilliputian imps) and similar curiosities, or offering to dive for coins thrown into the sea. In this accomplishment they are as proficient as young eider ducks, for the profession of sommozzatori, or divers, is hereditary in certain families of Santa Lucia, and the physical peculiarities developed by its exercise are transmitted from generation to generation. An English lady asking one of these juvenile tritons why he did not go to school and learn to read and write, received a conclusive, though silent answer, when he stooped and wrote his name on the ground in unexceptionable characters. He then explained that he attended a night-school, and thus combined a polite education with the prosecution of other pursuits by day. The exceptional aptitude for learning of the Neapolitans received a striking proof under the reign of Napoleon, when a new system of postbrief management, which took the German officials six weeks to acquire, was mastered in three days by those of Naples.

Various Causes--

Advancing years, care, sickness disappointment and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired It softens and cleanses the scalp giving it a healthy action It removes and cures dandruff and humors By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the hair roots are not destroyed or the glands decayed Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts

Ayer's Hair Vigor is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume

The spring term of the district court will convene in this city on Monday, April 2d, with Judge Harrison on the bench. The criminal docket will be comparatively light.

Fred Robinson's new soda fountain is one of the handsomest manufactured. It is the only one of the kind ever brought into the state and cost more than any one in use at Denver.

Mr. T. E. Hopkins who formerly controlled the photograph gallery in the Wells & Prewitt block but who for the past year has been living at Carrollton, Missouri, has returned to Colorado Springs and may remain permanently.

To-night's mass meeting in the court house hall should be largely attended. The question of better advertising our city throughout the east is a very important one and business men should take an active interest in the matter.

Messrs. Matt France, G. H. Stewart, C. H. White and Dr. Correy went to Denver on Sunday to attend a meeting of the board of trustees of the Deaf Mute Institute to be held there yesterday. At this meeting it was expected that the institute would be turned over to the new board, Messrs. Stewart and France to retire and their successors, Dr. Correy and C. H. White, to take their places.

At the El Paso club pool tournament last night the game was between C. E. Fisher and W. H. McIntyre, the score standing 0 to 5 in the former's favor.

The fifteen-ball pool tournament opened at Walker's billiard room last night, F. D. Sanford and A. G. Draper playing the first series, which resulted in a score of six to three in favor of the former. A game was afterward played between Draper and Matt Wilbur, the former coming out victorious—score, 6 to 5. O. J. Godfrey and Bob Ames will play the opening game to-night.

Minnie Palmer will appear at the opera house two nights this week, Thursday and Friday, in her new play, "My Sweetheart." A Chicago exchange in speaking of her says: "Little Minnie Palmer is deservedly a favorite, and the consequence of her popularity was a rousing house at the Grand on New Year's afternoon, and a duplicate of the same gratifying state of affairs in the evening. There are few better soubrettes than Miss Palmer, and she is pretty and pleasing, and has a kittenish way of her own that takes with everybody. The principal change in her impersonation of Tina is the decided improvement in her singing. Her voice was always pleasant and her singing one of the best of her accomplishments, but she has apparently given some attention to vocal culture since she last visited us. She dances very gracefully and her terpsichorean efforts invariably capture the house. Miss Palmer has improved greatly in the touches of pathos that occasionally fall to the lot of Tina, and her comedy has lost none of its vivacity and sprightliness."

SALICYLICA.

No More Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia.

Immediate Relief Warranted.
Permanent Cure Guaranteed.

Five years established and never known to fail in a single case, acute or chronic. Refer to all prominent physicians and druggists for the standing of Salicylica.

DESCRIPTION:

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.

SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

REMEMBER

that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly.

Give it a trial. Relief guaranteed or money refunded.
